

NEWS of ACQUALORETO for the Wider Circle

The Circolo of Acqualoreto had a nervous spring with a three or four week gap between the end of the run of the previous barkeepers and the start of the new team. The Happy Hour tradition was preserved at the Luckhurst residence and at La Cruccola across the piazza.

Oxanna & Roberto

Substitute Happy Hour at La Cruccola

Another edition of the annual summer festa was inaugurated with with our annual art exhibit in the heart of the village, with the big dinner in the piazza the following day. I had a small personal exhibit of paintings and drawings just across the street from the Circolo bar and that room also was the site of a tasting of the wine of Acqualoreto's own Redotto immediately following the art workshop event on Friday night. This year's fireworks on Ferragosto seemed bigger and better than ever. The festa was to end on Sunday night with a new comedy by our local theatrical group but, alas, a combination of illness in the family of some protagonists and a driving rainstorm ended our hopes of a glorious finale. Next year!

On the left, clockwise from left works by Roberto Banfi Rossi, Cecilia Piersigilli, Bruno Amalfitano, Danilo Donati, Lin Widmann, and Rosemary Luckhurst.

On the right, works by Richard Foquè, Laura Cannapa, Caridad Barrigan, and Dario Giancarlini.

Photograph by Brian Luckhurst and a painting by Robert De Graaf.

On the right, works by Graziano Marini, Dan Gustin, Carolyn In'tVeld, Cecilia Piersigilli, and Dario Giancarlini.

Fish dinner under the tent.

Sax and guitar on Art Night

We hope that some or all of you will return to enjoy, once again, the pleasures of Acqualoreto.

