

With only nine months to go in 2019, we're now fully immersed in the November 2020 US electoral campaign and the two parties are scurrying to line up candidates to appeal to the various identity groups. Taking a cue from the major media, we refrain from any mention of issues so as not to confuse the voters. Here then is the Democratic buffet table of presidential candidates with their natural constituencies.

- | | |
|---------------------|---|
| Joe Biden | Ronald Reagan nostalgics and rabidly bi-partisan voters |
| Cory Booker | bank presidents and other Obama nostalgics. |
| Steve Bullock | red state Democrats |
| Pete Buttigieg | LGBTQ voters, especially from the mid-west and the military |
| Julian Castro | progressive Latinos |
| John Delaney | Democratic capitalists |
| Tulsi Gabbard | Hindus and Bernie fans who fear he's too old |
| Kirsten Gillibrand | angry MeTooers and die-hard Hillary supporters |
| Kamala Harris | law & order Blacks |
| John Hickenlooper | radical centrists |
| Jay Inslee | climate change crusaders |
| Amy Klobuchar | "Mid-western nice" women with an edge |
| Wayne Messam | Jamaican-Americans & gun-shy football fans |
| Beto O'Rourke | Latino Kennedy family nostalgics |
| Bernie Sanders | elderly rural Jews and young socialists |
| Elizabeth Warren | Native Americans and enemies of banks |
| Marianne Williamson | Blacks hoping for reparations |
| Andrew Yang | techies & young entrepreneurs |

Meanwhile the GOP is concentrating its efforts on a very limited offering of candidates, shown here with their major constituencies.

Donald Trump

opponents of Galileo and subsequent heretics, folks awaiting the Rapture; nostalgics for the presidencies of Andrew Jackson and James Polk and the people who don't know who they were; the 1% and their employees in the upper 10%; worshippers of Benjamin Netanyahu, Ayn Rand Catholics, health care capitalists; garden variety misogynists; Mussolini and Giuliani nostalgics; NRA and AIPAC donors.

William Weld

alienated moderate Republicans; Libertarians

John Kasich

Never-Trump Republicans

CCN

The Cat Cartoon Network

Fair and Nuanced

All the rats fit to trap